

Living the Leader Role

Leadership is important now – but what is effective leadership? Is it rank and privilege, or responsibility and servanthood? In the face of constant change, within and outside your organization, effective leadership is especially critical.

What

Leadership can make or break the success of an organization. Effective leaders maintain an outward focus guiding others by providing vision, direction, values, purpose and inspiration. They know themselves, their strengths and their weaknesses. They have skills in both leading and managing and strive to serve those that they lead. They know how to direct, coach and collaborate.

Why

Effective leadership skills enable leaders to enhance their productivity and the productivity and satisfaction of those they lead. Many individuals are promoted into leadership or management positions because of ability, desire, or rank, but without any formal training or development. When leaders take the time to learn, practice, and improve leadership skills, the organization experiences powerful results.

How

Cornerstone offers a variety of tailored services to meet your leadership needs.

Consulting Services that Enhance Leadership

Topic	Snapshot
Living the Leader Role©	Five modules including tools and behaviors on leading self, leading others, leading teams, and leading in the organization with pre- and post-session support
Leadership of Self	assessment of your strengths as a leader using the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator®
Leadership of Staff	Leadership and supervisory skills tailored to the follower's needs
Leadership of the Board	leading teams for success
Leadership Within the Organization	managing the threshold between those you lead and those you follow
Change: Meet It and Greet It	understanding change, when and how to create change, and how to support people through change

Organizational Architecture	designing and planning organizational structures for effectiveness
--------------------------------	---